Bricker Calls Conference To Be Conducted Friday In Columbus

Increased opposition to the rumored proposal to place an army cantonment between Yellowbud and Clarksburg was being organized Wednesday by Pickaway and Ross County farm groups, with a meeting scheduled for Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Union-Scioto school in Ross County. Farmers in Wayne, Perry and Deercreek Townships are expected to attend the meeting.

Pickaway and Ross County farmers oppose the 50,000 acre site along the west bank of the Scioto River because they claim it will force many of them from their farms, it will deprive both Pickaway and Ross Counties of taxable lands and thereby increase the tax rate, and it will throw many farm laborers out of work. Just how far the site will extend into Pickaway County is not known, some unofficial reports stating the area will extend to Route 22 and will include the government land in the southwestern portion of the county.

Cady Names Committee

While farmers were planning their anti-cantonment drive, a committee of seven Circleville business men, appointed by Mayor William B. Cady, was preparing to attend an Ohio Campaign Organization meeting of United Service Organizations for National Defense to be held in Columbus Friday. Those appointed by the mayor are Clark Will, Frank Lynch, Dan McClain, Herman Hill, Karl Herrmann, Dwight Steele and Joseph Adkins. The meeting will open at 11 a. m. at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel.

Mayor Cady said he appointed the committee after he had received a telegram from Governor Bricker, urging the city to send delegates to the state meeting.

Mayor Cady said he had not been informed of the nature of the meeting, but he understood it would concern the establishments of army cantonments in the area and that the Circleville delegates probably would be called on to voice their opinions on the city's reaction to such proposals.

PARKING TASK UP TO COUNCIL

Tagging Stopped By Cady; Retailers To Suggest Main Street Limit

A lull in the police department's war against double parkers was noted Wednesday as council prepared to consider the problem at a meeting in the council chamber at 8 o'clock.

Mayor William Cady said Wednesday that he had issued orders to the chief of police that no traffic tags be issued until after council meets Wednesday night. Police officers said they were issuing no tickets during the day.

Should council decide to continue under its present ordinance, Ordinance 1074, the no-parking ruling will be strictly enforced, the mayor said.

Circleville merchants, who have vigorously protested the police department's recent drive on double-parkers, claiming that such action was driving buyers from their stores, were prepared Wednesday to voice their opinions at the council meeting.

George Griffith, chairman of the Retail Merchants division of the Chamber of Commerce, said his committee had several recommendations which it believed would help solve the parking problem. The committee will recommend that parallel parking be continued on Main Street, but will suggest that the time limit be reduced. It also will suggest that the length of cars be marked along the curbs so that parking space not be wasted.

Under orders of Chief of Police William McCrady, the police department began its drive against double parkers Saturday night, citing 22 violators into police quarters for $2 bonds.

The police department continued issuing tickets Monday, while Mayor Cady maintaining the public had not been warned of the department's action returned bonds of all those arrested Saturday night, Sunday and Monday.

STALIN ASSUMES MOLOTOV'S JOB; OF SPEEDING BIG POLICY ALTERED?

MOSCOW, May 7—Supplanting V. M. Molotov as head of the cabinet, Dictator Josef Stalin today assumed office as premier of the Soviet Union, thereby taking an actual government post for the first time in his long career as ruler of Russia.

Molotov will retain his position as foreign commissar, the office he held jointly with the premier since he succeeded former Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov. In addition, Molotov will serve as vice premier under Stalin.

The only official explanation of the dramatic shift was that Molotov was relieved of the premier's job "in accordance with his repeated requests."

Stalin, who previously exercised supreme authority as secretary of the communist party, now becomes "chairman of the council of people's commissars."

A British radio broadcast picked up by CBS said that Stalin's as-

COUNTY GREETES HALF INCH RAIN

Fields, Pastures Receive Valuable Downpour In Night, Morning

A one-half inch rain, the best of the 1941 growing season, came to thirsty Pickaway County fields and pastures Tuesday night and Wednesday and farmers and agricultural authorities pronounced it a "life saver" to wheat fields, meadows and pastures. Much corn, planted for some time but unable to grow because of the lack of moisture, now will come up, farmers say.

The rain, which began during the night and continued to almost noon Wednesday was measured at .56 of an inch by the official rain gauge. It was the first rain in May. April's total of 2.36 inches was far below normal and the first quarter of 1941 was reported by the weather bureau to be the driest on record.

Temperatures Wednesday were in the high sixties, twenty degrees below those reported Tuesday when the mercury soared to 86, equaling the all-year high set on April 19. Low temperature Wednesday was 62. Continued cool weather was predicted for Wednesday night and Thursday.

Uncle Sam's Army officers who have been in service at Camp Shelby, Miss., since last October have to come home to renew acquaintances.

Colonel Harry D. Jackson, commanding officer of the 112th Medical Regiment, greeted Lieutenant Joe M. Lynch of the Battery Outfit on Main Street the other day, both being home on furlough.

Jackson said he and Lynch had not seen each other more than twice since going south.

Other Camp Shelby men home for a furlough include Ezra Pritchard, Gaines Hill, Richard Smalley, John Ferguson, Irvin Trimmer, Don Brannon of Circleville and Raymond Wooten of Williamsport. They must be back in camp May 20.

Hotels, Restaurants, Bars Scoured For Men Unable To Return Home

NEW YORK, May 7—In another direct anti-Nazi move, a force of armed government agents today swept through New York's German colony rounding up more than 125 stranded Nazi seamen for shipment to an American "concentration camp."

Individual warrants charged each of the seamen with violating the Immigration Law by overstaying leave in this country without permission.

The only possible exit for them from the United States has been from San Francisco and only a few days ago a Canadian navy vessel stopped an American ship in United States Pacific waters and removed four German fliers attempting to return to their country.

Indication that the roundup was carefully planned was seen in the fact that a large force of immigration officers, Canadian border patrolmen and coast guardsmen has been concentrating in New York since Monday.

Yorkville Raided

At 4 a. m. today these federal agents, aided by New York City patrolmen and detectives located the Nazi roundup in Yorkville, center of Manhattan's German colony.

Hotels, furnished rooming houses, all-night restaurants and bars were combed and any German who could not account for his residence was questioned and his name checked against the list of wanted men.

Although the raiding party was armed with heavy service revolvers, no resistance was offered and the seamen were herded, first to police precincts and then to the barge office at the tip of Manhattan Isle for transportation past (Continued on Page Three)

MUSIC OF ASCAP MAY RETURN TO AIR THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, May 7—The 1,250,000 tunes of the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers, which have been kept off the major networks since January 1 as the result of a dispute over royalties, will go back on the air Saturday night, Fred Weber, general manager of the Mutual Broadcasting System, predicted today.

Voting by Mutual's 176 affiliated stations on the proposed new contract with ASCAP is now in progress, and early returns indicate the decision will be close, Weber said. If necessary, Weber asserted he will call a special meeting of the affiliates in St. Louis Saturday to win them over to accepting the contract.

The other radio networks, Weber charged, are making efforts to prevent the approval of the ASCAP-MBS contract, which has been approved by Mutual's stockholders. Under rules of the Mutual system, a majority of the affiliated stations must endorse the stockholders' action.

War Secretary Says Uncle Sam's Sea Force Could Assure British Aid

BERLIN CITES DANGERS

War Spread In East Seen; Both Air Forces Blast Important Districts

By International News Service
Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson's assertion that the United States Navy alone can insure delivery of war supplies to England overshadowed all war developments today.

In Washington, non-interventionists immediately opened fire on Stimson's declarations, Sen. Gerald P. Nye terming it a "trial balloon for war." Administration supporters replied it was the inevitable course for America if the aid-to-Britain policy is to be carried out.

Berlin warned that fulfillment of Stimson's plan would result in "gravest consequences." Chancellor Adolf Hitler's declaration that any American ship entering the combat zone would be torpedoed or bombed was repeated. Stimson was denounced once more as a "warmonger."

In what was admittedly the most outspoken statement to date from the cabinet inner circle, Stimson declared that Britain's life-line was being threatened, that all this country has done so far "is not sufficient," and asked what are we going to do about it?

Navy Ready To Act

"While we are struggling to build up an uncompleted army and an uncompleted air force, we have at our hands a naval instrument prepared and ready for just such an emergency," he declared.

"Right now, at this cross roads of history, it is within our power, if we choose to use that instrument, to turn the tide of darkness back from the Atlantic world, and, while it is held in check, to gain the means which will preclude it forever from attaining its full purpose."

"If today that navy should make secure the seas for delivery of our munitions to Great Britain, it will render as great a service to our own country and to the preservation of American freedom as it has ever rendered in all its glorious history."

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early, asked whether Stimson's speech had the approval of the President, said: "You may assume that Secretary Stimson talked to the President about the speech."

England hailed the speech as marking a historic turning point in America's policy.

But from Japan came a new warning that as an axis partner Nippon would fulfill its obligations to both Germany and Italy if the United States entered the war. Col. Yatsuji Nagai of the Japanese foreign office said American help can not save Britain from inevitable defeat.

Virginia Gayda, the Fascist press spokesman, looked on the Stimson speech as nothing less than a preliminary declaration of America's intention to enter the war as an active belligerent.

War In East Spreads

OPM STARTS TASK MOLOTOV'S JOB; OF SPEEDING BIG POLICY ALTERED?

WASHINGTON, May 7—Industrial experts in the Office of Production Management moved quietly but swiftly today to carry out President Roosevelt's request to increase sharply the nation's output of heavy, long-range bombers.

While OPM officials declined to comment officially on possible courses of action to be taken in carrying out the President's demand, spokesmen for various departments admitted they are studying methods of increasing bomber production "on short notice."

Two preliminary steps which OPM spokesmen admitted are "under consideration" are: 1—Early application of "emergency priority ratings on materials and parts vital to aircraft. Thus, plants manufacturing heavy bombers could within a few days" be granted preferential status on materials over factories engaging in producing other types of military aircraft.

2—Expansion of manufacturing facilities to "double or triple" the present monthly output of aluminum, vital to aircraft production. Last month aluminum production was estimated at 52,000,000 pounds. Experts now are studying methods of boosting that figure to 100,000,000 or possibly 150,000,000 pounds.

In what was admittedly the most outspoken statement to date from the cabinet inner circle, Stimson declared that Britain's life-line was being threatened, that all this country has done so far "is not sufficient," and asked what are we going to do about it?

Navy Ready To Act

"While we are struggling to build up an uncompleted army and an uncompleted air force, we have at our hands a naval instrument prepared and ready for just such an emergency," he declared.

"Right now, at this cross roads of history, it is within our power, if we chose to use that instrument, to turn the tide of darkness back from the Atlantic world, and, while it is held in check, to gain the means which will preclude it forever from attaining its full purpose."

"If today that navy should make secure the seas for delivery of our munitions to Great Britain, it will render as great a service to our own country and to the preservation of American freedom as it has ever rendered in all its glorious history."

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early, asked whether Stimson's speech had the approval of the President, said: "You may assume that Secretary Stimson talked to the President about the speech."

England hailed the speech as marking a historic turning point in America's policy.

But from Japan came a new warning that as an axis partner Nippon would fulfill its obligations to both Germany and Italy if the United States entered the war. Col. Yatsuji Nagai of the Japanese foreign office said American help can not save Britain from inevitable defeat.

Virginia Gayda, the Fascist press spokesman, looked on the Stimson speech as nothing less than a preliminary declaration of America's intention to enter the war as an active belligerent.

War In East Spreads

The war itself raged on ceaselessly, threatening to spread far beyond its present limits in the Near East.

STOUTSVILLE HI SCHEDULES PLAY FRIDAY, MAY 16

The senior class of the Stoutsville High School will present its play, "Aunt Bessie Beats The Band" at 8 o'clock Friday evening, May 16, in the Clearcreek Township High School auditorium.

The chief laugh ingredient in this plot is how the women get the better of the men on the matrimonial problem. A conquest for masculine hearts was on with a mighty force, Alice Morley, with plenty of wealth, gets a husband on salary, to get even with Freddy Frost who had earlier jilted her. Good-natured and fooling and pathos are both expressed in the scene.

Bessie Bonner gets hold of the heart and pocketbook of the village lawyer, Hezekiah Hawkeye. She makes him very unhappy by running up large bills for hats and clothing.

May Ketchum, a hopeful spinster, has her troubles, but in the end she lands a life partner and is all set for life.

Recalling that Molotov became foreign minister just before the Russo-German friendship pact was signed prior to the outbreak of the European war, the London radio commented:

the Statue of Liberty to Ellis Island.

The scene was reminiscent of the early days of the World War and the barge office had all the appearance of a detention prison with the armed officers forming a circle around the seamen who huddled silently together, bewildered at this turn of events.

Most of the seamen were understood to have been employed on Standard Oil tankers before the war. They were "beached" when American crews replaced them and have had no way of leaving the country. Their maximum stopover privilege was 60 days but some of them have been in New York for well over a year.

Camp Identity Unknown
Asked what was the destination of the seamen, one immigration inspector said:

"They'll be taken to Ellis Island and then to a midwestern or western internment camp."

When asked where there is an internment camp in the United States, the inspector referred inquiries to Washington.

The government previously had interned the crew of the liner Columbus, scuttled to prevent its seizure by the British.

LIMA SWIMMER HERO AS THREE LIVES ARE SAVED

BELLEFONTAINE, O., May 7—Three persons today had the heroic efforts of James Hunt, 28, of Lima, to thank for their lives.

Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hunter, Jr., of Lima; and Miss Virginia Williams, of Columbus, were in a sailboat in the middle of nearby Indian Lake when a storm arose suddenly.

The flimsy boat capsized throwing the four into the icy water. While clinging to the overturned craft, they considered the situation.

It was decided that Hunt would attempt to swim ashore for help while Hunter stayed by the boat to help the women. Despite the fact, the overturned sailboat was in the middle of the 17,000-acre lake, Hunt succeeded in battling through high waves to the shore.

There, the Lima man notified Capt. H. E. Newland, state conservation commission lake foreman and Logan County Game Protector Russell Alloway who set out in a large boat and rescued Hunt's companions.

War Secretary Says Uncle Sam's Sea Force Could Assure British Aid

British concentrated on Hamburg. Each side claimed it shot down at least six of the other's planes.

Alarming reports reached Budapest that the Iraqi-British hostilities might eventually plunge the entire Near East into war. One report told of German plans to withdraw troops now in Greece for action elsewhere. Another told of formation of a native Iraqi government at Basra to oppose the anti-British regime of Rashid Ali at Baghdad. Still another report said Bedouin tribes were organizing for war against the British.

The world also pondered another maneuver by the inscrutable Josef Stalin of Russia who elevated himself into the premiership over V. M. Molotov who still remains as foreign minister. There was no clear indication of the significance of this maneuver, especially whether it marked a shift in Russian foreign policy now favoring the axis.

Great Britain renounced a desire for any territorial acquisitions in Abyssinia, newly wrested from the Italians. Great Britain announced a preference instead of an independent native government under Emperor Haile Selassie who three days ago returned to his throne.

A dangerous situation appeared to be in the making in French-mandated Syria where the Germans claimed the Arabs were rioting against the British. British circles minimized the seriousness of these clashes.

British Strengthened

From London came news that the British military position in Iraq had improved considerably with abandonment by Iraqi forces of their positions on the escarpment surrounding the RAF airbase at Habbaniyah.

British officials also announced that Iraqi forces which occupied an important oil pipeline post had "waved white flags" and that the post subsequently had been occupied by British troops.

George Mortimer Pullman, who built the first sleeping car, also put into execution the idea of vestibule trains.

LIMA SWIMMER HERO AS THREE LIVES ARE SAVED

BELLEFONTAINE, O., May 7—Three persons today had the heroic efforts of James Hunt, 28, of Lima, to thank for their lives.

Hunt; Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hunter, Jr., of Lima; and Miss Virginia Williams, of Columbus, were in a sailboat in the middle of nearby Indian Lake when a storm arose suddenly.

The flimsy boat capsized throwing the four into the icy water. While clinging to the overturned craft, they considered the situation.

It was decided that Hunt would attempt to swim ashore for help while Hunter stayed by the boat to help the women. Despite the fact, the overturned sailboat was in the middle of the 17,000-acre lake, Hunt succeeded in battling through high waves to the shore.

There, the Lima man notified Capt. H. E. Newland, state conservation commission lake foreman and Logan County Game Protector Russell Alloway who set out in a large boat and rescued Hunt's companions.

Only the fact that both Hunter and Hunt were accented lifesav-

PRESIDENT SIGNS SUPPLY BILL FOR NAVAL FORCES

WASHINGTON, May 7—President Roosevelt today signed a record-breaking naval supply bill, making $3,415,521,750 available for the nation's sea forces during the fiscal year starting June 30.

The measure contains funds for speeding work on the two-ocean fleet, enlarging the sea air power, and maintaining the naval establishment at war strength during the next 12 months.

Hunt was an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for the state legislature last year and later worked in the state auditor's office until he enlisted in the army several months ago. He is now a staff sergeant at Camp Shelby, Miss., but currently is home on furlough.

War Secretary Says Uncle Sam's Sea Force Could Assure British Aid

British concentrated on Hamburg. Each side claimed it shot down at least six of the other's planes.

Alarming reports reached Budapest that the Iraqi-British hostilities might eventually plunge the entire Near East into war. One report told of German plans to withdraw troops now in Greece for action elsewhere. Another told of formation of a native Iraqi government at Basra to oppose the anti-British regime of Rashid Ali at Baghdad. Still another report said Bedouin tribes were organizing for war against the British.

The world also pondered another maneuver by the inscrutable Josef Stalin of Russia who elevated himself into the premiership over V. M. Molotov who still remains as foreign minister. There was no clear indication of the significance of this maneuver, especially whether it marked a shift in Russian foreign policy now favoring the axis.

Great Britain renounced a desire for any territorial acquisitions in Abyssinia, newly wrested from the Italians. Great Britain announced a preference instead of an independent native government under Emperor Haile Selassie who three days ago returned to his throne.

A dangerous situation appeared to be in the making in French-mandated Syria where the Germans claimed the Arabs were rioting against the British. British circles minimized the seriousness of these clashes.

British Strengthened

From London came news that the British military position in Iraq had improved considerably with abandonment by Iraqi forces of their positions on the escarpment surrounding the RAF airdrome at Habbaniyah.

British officials also announced that Iraqi forces which occupied an important oil pipeline post had "waved white flags" and that the post subsequently had been occupied by British troops.

George Mortimer Pullman, who built the first sleeping car, also put into execution the idea of vestibule trains.

NAVY ON THE JOB

THE more the President explains about our naval patrols, where they are and what they are doing and what they propose to accomplish, the less people understand it. And that, perhaps, is the purpose the Commander-in-Chief of the Navy had in mind when he started his elaborate explanations.

It may be just as well for the public to stop inquiring. A democracy naturally wants to know all about everything, but there are times and places when what we don't know won't hurt us—as it might, if our enemies or our friends' enemies got hold of the facts. Presumably the Navy can be counted on, as usual, to take care of our interests.

TWO BRILLIANT RETREATS

ONE of the finest things said about that remarkable retreat of the British expeditionary force from Greece is a statement made by Edward Kennedy, an American correspondent who accompanied them in their long and difficult trek, when they were fighting rear-guard actions day and night for nearly two weeks, against overwhelmingly superior forces, under almost continuous fire.

"In all the great withdrawal," he says, "I did not see one incident of panic."

Soldiers who retreat as they did live to fight another day, probably under more favorable conditions.

Incidentally young people with a feeling for history should be interested in comparing the British retreat with the retreat of the famous Ten Thousand Greek troops, told about by Xenophon, the first war correspondent, in his "Anabasis." It used to be familiar reading when the Greek language was generally studied in high schools and colleges.

Those 10,000 Greeks, in the year 401 B. C., marched all the way from Greece to Arbela, near Babylon, and attacked a solid army of about a million men, with such impetus that they went clear through and came out the other side. They might have shuttled back and forth till they licked the whole outfit, if Cyrus, their leader, hadn't been killed. As it was, they turned north and made their way, barefoot, over the frozen mountains of Armenia to Trebizond on the Black Sea, and eventually got back home.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

SOUTH AMERICA has two coasts as well as east coast. Our amateur strategists don't seem to think of that. I suppose our navy professionals have an inkling of the fact, but our news commentators, most of them never having been south of the Rio Grande, apparently don't understand it. Their thesis is that, if Germany gets control of the west African continental bulge into the Atlantic, Uncle Sam will be in an awful fix—it'll be a fearful job for him to keep open his line of communications with our New World neighbors from the Equator on down to Cape Horn.

These yarns are in print every day or two. I've just been reading one.

The author has it all reasoned out. Africa does, indeed, bulge out into the Atlantic in South America's direction and South America bulges out into the same ocean in the direction of Africa.

At the western extremity of the African bulge is the French port of Dakar. France being pretty well under Herr Hitler's thumb, it's conceivable that the Nazis will succeed in establishing a Dakar base.

Against the opposition of the British navy, they hardly will be able to do it by sea, but maybe, by getting through European France, occupying Spain, capturing Gibraltar, scouting aerially across the narrow strait, establishing themselves on the African side and traversing the bulge to the southwestward overland, they'll arrive at their Dakar destination. It'll be a mean trip, but not necessarily an impossibility.

PERNAMBUCO TO DAKAR

Pernambuco, in Brazil, is at the extremity of South America's easterly bulge.

From Dakar to Pernambuco is about as far from New York to Panama. That is to say, the Germans, at Dakar, could be a good deal nearer to a South American landing place than we Yankees are. The presumption is that they'll undertake to establish a base at Pernambuco, too, and perhaps at Para, at the mouth of the Amazon. Possibly, as a matter of speculation, they'll scare Brazil into acquiescing. Besides, assert our worried commentators, Nazism and Fascism are decidedly strong in that part of the world, anyway.

German planes, submarines and a few raiders, so the thesis is, would make that comparatively narrow stretch of ocean from Dakar to Pernambuco exceedingly dangerous for Yankee ships to cross, bound up and down the coast.

Furthermore, operating down the coast from Pernambuco, the Germans would have southern Brazil and all of Uruguay and Argentina by the scruff of their necks. Then, working inland to the westward, they could penetrate Paraguay, Bolivia, Chile and gosh knows what additional republics.

It sounds like a large order, but alarmists argue that Adolf has the ground efficiently prepared for his activities through the missionary work his fifth columnists have been engaged in for quite a while. And at the same time (I'm quoting the alarmists), the United States won't be able to do a darned thing because of that bottleneck from Dakar to Pernambuco.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

RISE IN FOOD PRICES DUE

WASHINGTON—It will not be announced but Defense authorities plan to permit a gradual rise in retail food prices up to ten percent by the end of this year.

This increase is considered necessary to cover higher prices which the farmer will receive when the Government buys vast quantities of food for aid to Britain. But Defense price controllers will not tolerate more than ten percent, figuring that any greater increase would merely mean more profits for the middleman.

A fine check-rein will be held on speculation and profiteering under lend-lease food plans now being quietly formulated. The authorities want to make sure that the moderate rise in food prices will go to the farmer; also they want to prevent any skyrocketing of the cost of living.

Government experts cite tomatoes as an illustration. Because of their high vitamin content, the British want 15,000,000 cases of canned tomatoes. To obtain this huge quantity and at the same time not curtail the domestic supply, the Agriculture Department's county agents are advising farmers to go heavily for tomatoes. As an inducement, they are being assured of $11 to $12 a ton for their crop, about $3 more than last year's price.

This higher farm price will add about one cent a can to the retail cost. This is considered a legitimate mark-up, but price control chiefs say that no more will be allowed.

NOTE—First offerings of canned peaches on the West Coast opened at $1.57 a dozen and then were withdrawn in the expectation of higher prices. Last year the same peaches sold for $1.17 a dozen. Government authorities are keeping an eye on this situation.

STREAMLINED FOODS

Because of the acute shipping shortage, food items for shipment to Britain are being selected for high vitamin and calorie content, also for minimum bulk and weight.

In general, preference will be given to concentrated and dried foods, rather than bulky canned goods such as fruits, which contain a considerable amount of water. Tomatoes are an exception because the juice they are packed in is high in vitamins.

One item urgently desired by the British is dehydrated vegetable soup, twelve tons of which will make 700,000 bowls.

A plan is under consideration to transport some of this concentrated food in the big bombers being ferried across the Atlantic, which can easily carry a twelve-ton load.

The $400,000,000 that has been allocated for the food-aid program will be used to buy 15,000,000 cases of canned

WHAT ABOUT OUR NAVY?

It may be, the alarmists admit, that we could crack the bottleneck if we could concentrate big naval and air forces against it, but our navy, at least, won't be in a position to leave the Pacific, due to Japan. So how the heck, the alarmists ask, can we attend to that South American east coast?

Now, I've got a suggestion of my own. I don't know whether or not the east coast will be as bad as the alarmists think, but assume the affirmative. What's the matter, then, with the shipment of transportloads of Yankees down the west coast, which the Nazis can't get at to save their lives, land them at Valparaiso and shoot them across the continent to the east coast? It's only an overnight trip from coast to coast and the railroad accommodations are first class.

Another thing, I don't believe those Latin Americans are as Fifth Columnized as the alarmists think—and I spent six years in their midst, in the newspaper business. I've a daughter and two grandchildren who were born on that east coast, and I ought to be a fair guesser.

There are some German colonies there, and they are a trifle bothersome, like our bunds, but they are kept tolerably effectively repressed. And Latin America has got some dictators, but they want to do their own dictating—not to be dictated to from Berlin.

Let the Germans try to get sassy with them, and, if they need "Yanqui" help to put a stop to it, I'll venture that they'll welcome us with open arms—so long as we don't try to get sassy, too.

Familiar Old Corner Druggist a Passing Clan

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Within the past few years our literature has begun to notice the sure signs in American life who have seen so familiar as hardly to attract the attention of the literary world. There was Dr. Hertzler's Horse and Bugby Doctor, followed by Country Doctor, Country Parson, Hoss Doctor, and now we have Robert B. Nixon, Jr.'s account of his father, called Corner Druggist (Prentice-Hall, Inc., publishers, New York, 1941).

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The corner drug store still exists and I suppose there must be some reason why corners are selected, although I am not so sure I understand it, but the corner druggist, in the old sense of the word, is largely disappearing. He was the neighborhood druggist, just as the doctor was the neighborhood doctor and the minister was the neighborhood minister. His position, as Mr. Nixon says, was at once the most obscure and the most important in his community. He performed the greatest service for the lowest pay.

Apprentice at Seventeen

The corner druggist here described, began his apprenticeship when he was 17 years old. He lived over the drug store. He was available day and night. He did a good deal of medical practice in the way of prescribing for common ailments. So far as I can see, he did it pretty well. He took care of a great many illnesses at a cost which the patient could afford to pay and filled a place in the practice of medicine which I am not sure was supplied by the regular medical profession. The Public Relations Councils of the various druggists associations tell me that his practice is dying out but I am not so sure but what it is a good practice. Your baker now sells you vitamins, why shouldn't your druggist sell you simple herbs?

"The old-fashioned neighborhood druggist was an institution unique in American life...."

A Neighborhood Accommodation

"The corner druggist was an accommodation center much like the modern filling station. People come there to use the telephones or the rest rooms, to get free maps and free information, and occasionally to buy. So it was with the druggist. Father said that loafers bought cigars in other places and came there to smoke them; that they bought drugs somewhere else and came there to be entertained. People dropped in for the weather report, to look at the thermometer, to buy two-cent stamps, to have specks taken out of their eyes...."

"Father, like most old-time pharmacists, cursed the people who came to talk instead of to buy, but he would have been lost without the gossip and bustle around him. Because he was on duty eighteen hours a day, he had no opportunity for any other social life. The familiar story was of the pharmacist and his friend... who were playing checkers...."

The latter whispered, "Doc, a customer just came into the store."

"Yes, I know. Keep still. Maybe he'll go out again."

Long Hours for Low Pay

The average neighborhood druggist has a hard time keeping his head above water, or staying a few steps ahead of the sheriff....

"Suppose a druggist fills six prescriptions a day at sixty or even seventy-five cents. Let us say it is all profit. That makes $3.60 or $4.50. Let us say his average daily business is thirty dollars. That is a very fair average. His profits cannot possibly be over one-third of his gross receipts. That gives him ten dollars. He must pay store rent, light, heat, and a relief clerk, and usually he has a boy to help him."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

S. D.:—"Is oatmeal, eaten every morning, harmful for a bad liver, and what would you advise for a bad liver?"

Answer—Oatmeal is not harmful for anything, but is a highly nutritious and well-balanced article of diet. Doctor Johnson once sneered, "The men and horses in Scotland both eat oatmeal!" and some Scotchman in his audience replied, "And where will you find such men and such horses?" The term "bad liver" is too indefinite to attempt to explain. "Bad liver" is a term loosely used for anybody who feels out of sorts, headachy, etc., and the liver usually has nothing to do with the condition.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

DONALD hesitated as his turn to speak arrived. June looked at him swiftly, and after a moment he said, "I am afraid I can't speak for my wife. I believe she has commitments in Hollywood the last of this month. For my part, however, I expect to stay just as long as you'll let me. This looks like a real story, and I seem to be the only newshound on the scene. Maybe it'll be one of those 'scoops' the movies are always talking about."

"Well," said Hugh, and stood up. "You're all a bunch of regular fellows and I appreciate it. You'll be guarded, however. The new boatman you hired, Forman, is one of our men. He's got a system rigged up by which he can summon help from the mainland at a moment's notice."

They all trooped down to the pier with Hugh to see him off. And when the boat carrying him to the mainland had become a small dot in the distance, they turned and looked at each other.

"What do we do now?" asked Betsy.

Terry laughed and slid her hand through Bill's uninjured arm. "Well, I don't know just what you're going to do, but as for Bill and me, we're going to take up our honeymoon where it was so unpleasantly interrupted. So long, folks—see you later."

"A shameless wench," Bill apologized for her as she turned away. "But it's the way she was brought up. You'll excuse her, I hope."

The others trailed away. June and Donald walked without speaking until they were out of earshot of the others. June stopped then and looked up at Donald. There was pain and hurt in her eyes as she said quietly, "So you read Henderson's telegram. That wasn't very sporting of you, Don. You must have known that if I had wanted you to see it, I'd have shown it to you."

Donald nodded. "But it was something I had to see. After all, June, you ARE Jacoby."

"I'm not I'm Mrs. Donald Heath."

"It's no good, June," said Donald grimly. "I must have been insane to let you talk me into this."

She went white beneath the words, but Donald pretended not to see or to hear and went doggedly on. "I knew you were as far out of my reach as the stars the first time the paper sent me to interview you."

"My dearest dear," said June,

shakily, "I'm no farther away from you than the curve of your arm. I've never been. Oh, Don, dearest, we've been all over this before—again and again—"

"It's no use, June. I'll never be anything but a hack newspaper guy. The best I can ever hope for is a hundred a week—and that's not enough to buy you silk stockings."

"Then I'll wear cotton,"

"Don't be childish," said Donald almost savagely. "Be sensible—be reasonable—use your head—"

June straightened beneath the sting in his words and her eyes met his steadily, almost coldly. "You're right. I have been childish. I've used my heart instead of my head. I roped you into this marriage, and since you're convinced that it was all wrong—you're so very wise—no doubt you're right about that, too. I'm sorry I've been so stupid. I won't trouble you again."

She turned because the tears threatened and she wouldn't weep there before him; she had clung to him, had thrown herself into his arms, weeping, protesting her love for him; she had actually begged him to marry her. She had fought down his protests that he had nothing to give her in exchange for what she would give up by marrying him; he wouldn't be just an appendage to the career of a great musical artist. He wouldn't live her way—and he had tried to prove to her that she couldn't live his. But she had loved him so terribly that she had made a small package of her pride and had offered it to him, all wrapped in the shining gold and blue of her love. She had humbled herself, and he had married her. And now, less than a month after the wedding, he was telling her that it had been a mistake.

Well, she couldn't plead any more; couldn't humble herself any further. She had been in the very dust at his feet, and he had said that it wasn't enough. She crept back to the small, gay cottage that had been like a shrine for their love and, like a wounded animal that crawls into its burrow to nurse its pain, she went inside, closing the door against the bright, golden sunshine that seemed a mockery now.

On the beach, behind the friendly shelter of a gaily striped umbrella, Natalie, Mrs. Edmonds and Betsy lay away the rest of the afternoon, talking idly, going over and over the happenings of the night before and the things Hugh

Powell had said.

Mrs. Edmonds chuckled suddenly, though there were spots of color high on her cheeks beneath her carefully applied makeup.

"Mr. Powell looked so startled when he discovered that the major and I were honeymooners, too—not just chaperones, or visitors," she drawled. Betsy and Natalie realized that she was leading up to something that she very much wanted to say without being entirely sure how to say it. "I suppose it does seem rather absurd for two people as old as Willie and I to be honeymooning like a couple of youngsters—but Willie and I have waited a long time for a honeymoon."

"Have you known each other such a long time?" Natalie asked politely, not because she was particularly interested, but because Mrs. Edmonds seemed to expect it.

"Practically since childhood—since grammar school days," said Mrs. Edmonds almost eagerly. "We were sweethearts in high school. Of course, Willie is a great deal older than I. He was finishing high school when I started. We were engaged when I was 17, and he went away to West Point."

She was silent for a moment, looking out over the lovely, restless turquoise of the sea that came rolling in on the beach in great white-topped breakers.

Betsy and Natalie waited politely. Natalie lay full-length on a gaily patterned beach mattress, her beautiful legs brown and smooth, the white of her brief linen shorts and sleeveless shirt making her look even more alluring than her formal clothes. Betsy, in a gingham play-suit, her bare feet in silly little wooden-soled clogs, leaned back against a striped canvas beach-rest, her brown legs tucked beneath her. But Mrs. Edmonds, coaxed and carefully made up, in a finely white frock, sat rather erect in a canvas chair.

"It was at West Point two weeks before graduation that he met Estelle," said Mrs. Edmonds, and something in her tone made Betsy and Natalie exchange swift, significant glances. "She was there visiting her brother during commencement week. Willie wanted me to come up, but Father was sick and I couldn't leave him. Father passed away the following week so, in spite of what happened, I have always been glad that I didn't go. Though perhaps if I had, things might have been so different for Willie and me."

Today's Horoscope

Those of you who have birthdays today may look forward to a splendid year ahead. Domestic happiness, financial good fortune, the help and goodwill of relatives and successful travel are foreseen for you. Make the most of your opportunities. Somewhat unusual characteristics will be the possession of the child who is born on this date. He or she will be highly intellectual, profound and sincere, kind-hearted, generous, but firm. The church, law, a scholastic profession or welfare work would prove most successful for such a personality.

NAVY ON THE JOB

THE more the President explains about our naval patrols, where they are and what they are doing and what they propose to accomplish, the less people understand it. And that, perhaps, is the purpose the Commander-in-Chief of the Navy had in mind when he started his elaborate explanations.

It may be just as well for the public to stop inquiring. A democracy naturally wants to know all about everything, but there are times and places when what we don't know won't hurt us—as it might, if our enemies or our friends' enemies got hold of the facts. Presumably the Navy can be counted on, as usual, to take care of our interests.

TWO BRILLIANT RETREATS

ONE of the finest things said about that remarkable retreat of the British expeditionary force from Greece is a statement made by Edward Kennedy, an American correspondent who accompanied them in their long and difficult trek, when they were fighting rear-guard actions day and night for nearly two weeks, against overwhelmingly superior forces, under almost continuous fire.

"In all the great withdrawal," he says, "I did not see one incident of panic."

Soldiers who retreat as they did live to fight another day, probably under more favorable conditions.

Incidentally young people with a feeling for history should be interested in comparing the British retreat with the retreat of the famous Ten Thousand Greek troops, told about by Xenophon, the first war correspondent, in his "Anabasis." It used to be familiar reading when the Greek language was generally studied in high schools and colleges.

Those 10,000 Greeks, in the year 401 B. C., marched all the way from Greece to Arbela, near Babylon, and attacked a solid army of about a million men, with such impetus that they went clear through and came out the other side. They might have shuttled back and forth till they licked the whole outfit, if Cyrus, their leader, hadn't been killed. As it was, they turned north and made their way, barefoot, over the frozen mountains of Armenia to Trebizond on the Black Sea, and eventually got back home.

WORLD AT A GLANCE —By— Charles P. Stewart

SOUTH AMERICA has two coasts as well as east coast. Our amateur strategists don't seem to think of that. I suppose our navy professionals have an inkling of the fact, but our news commentators, most of them never having been south of the Rio Grande, apparently don't understand it. Their thesis is that, if Germany gets control of the west African continental bulge into the Atlantic, Uncle Sam will be in an awful fix—it'll be a fearful job for him to keep open his line of communications with our New World neighbors from the Equator on down to Cape Horn.

These yarns are in print every day or two. I've just been reading one.

The author has it all reasoned out. Africa does, indeed, bulge out into the Atlantic in South America's direction and South America bulges out into the same ocean in the direction of Africa. At the western extremity of the African bulge is the French port of Dakar. France being pretty well under Herr Hitler's thumb, it's conceivable that the Nazis will succeed in establishing a Dakar base.

Against the opposition of the British navy, they hardly will be able to do it by sea, but maybe, getting through European France, occupying Spain, capturing Gibraltar, scouting aerially across the narrow strait, establishing themselves on the African side and traversing the bulge to the southwestward overland, they'll arrive at their Dakar destination. It'll be a mean trip, but not necessarily an impossibility.

RISE IN FOOD PRICES DUE

WASHINGTON—It will not be announced but Defense authorities plan to permit a gradual rise in retail food prices up to ten percent by the end of this year.

This increase is considered necessary to cover higher prices which the farmer will receive when the Government buys vast quantities of food for aid to Britain. But Defense price controllers will not tolerate more than ten percent, figuring that any greater increase would merely mean more profits for the middleman.

A fine check-rein will be held on speculation and profiteering under lend-lease food plans now being quietly formulated. The authorities want to make sure that the moderate rise in food prices will go to the farmer; also they want to prevent any skyrocketing of the cost of living.

Government experts cite tomatoes as an illustration. Because of their high vitamin content, the British want 15,000,000 cases of canned tomatoes. To obtain this huge quantity and at the same time not curtail the domestic supply, the Agriculture Department's county agents are advising farmers to go heavily for tomatoes. As an inducement, they are being assured of $11 to $12 a ton for their crop, about $3 more than last year's price.

This higher farm price will add about one cent a can to the retail cost. This is considered a legitimate mark-up, but price control chiefs say that no more will be allowed.

NOTE—First offerings of canned peaches on the West Coast opened at $1.57 a dozen and then were withdrawn in the expectation of higher prices. Last year the same peaches sold for $1.17 a dozen. Government authorities are keeping an eye on this situation.

STREAMLINED FOODS

Because of the acute shipping shortage, food items for shipment to Britain are being selected for high vitamin and calorie content, also for minimum bulk and weight.

In general, preference will be given to concentrated and dried foods, rather than bulky canned goods such as fruits, which contain a considerable amount of water. Tomatoes are an exception because the juice they are packed in is high in vitamins.

One item urgently desired by the British is dehydrated vegetable soup, twelve tons of which will make 700,000 bowls.

A plan is under consideration to transport some of this concentrated food in the big bombers being ferried across the Atlantic, which can easily carry a twelve-ton load.

The $400,000,000 that has been allocated for the food-aid program will be used to buy 15,000,000 cases of canned

Familiar Old Corner Druggist a Passing Clan

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Within the past few years our literature has begun to notice the changes in American life who have seen so familiar as hardly to attract the attention of the literary

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

World, there was Dr. Hertzler's Horse and Buggy Doctor, followed by Country Doctor, Country Parson, Hoss Doctor, and now we have Robert B. Nixon, Jr.'s account of his father, called Corner Druggist (Prentice-Hall, Inc., publishers, New York, 1941).

The corner drug store still exists and I suppose there must be some good reason why corners are selected, although I am not so sure I understand it, but the corner druggist, in the old sense of the word, is largely disappearing. He was the neighborhood druggist, just as the doctor was the neighborhood doctor and the minister was the neighborhood minister.

His position, as Mr. Nixon says, was at once the most obscure and the most important in his community. He performed the greatest service for the lowest pay.

Apprentice at Seventeen

The corner druggist here described, began his apprenticeship when he was 17 years old. He lived over the drug store. He was available day and night. He did a good deal of medical practice in the way of prescribing for common ailments. So far as I can see, he did it pretty well. He took care of a great many illnesses at a cost which the patient could afford to pay and filled a place in the practice of medicine which I am not sure was supplied by the regular medical profession. The Public Relations Councils of the various druggists associations tell me that this practice is dying out but I am not so sure but that it is a good practice. Your baker now sells you vitamins, why shouldn't your druggist sell you simple herbs?

"The old-fashioned neighborhood druggist was an institution unique in American life. . . . A Neighborhood Accommodation

"The corner druggist was an accommodation center much like the modern filling station. People come there to use the telephones or the rest rooms, to get free maps and free information, and occasionally to buy. So it was with the druggist. Father said that loafers bought cigars in other places

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

S. D.:—"Is oatmeal, eaten every morning, harmful for a bad liver, and would you advise for a bad liver?"

Answer—Oatmeal is not harmful for anything, but is a highly nutritious and well-balanced article of diet. Doctor Johnson once sneered, "The men and horses in Scotland both eat oatmeal," and some Scotchman in his audience replied, "And where will you find such men and such horses?" The term "bad liver" is too indefinite to attempt to explain. "Bad liver" is a term loosely used for anybody who feels out of sorts, headachy, etc., and the liver usually has nothing to do with the condition.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

DONALD hesitated as his turn to speak arrived. June looked at him swiftly, and after a moment he said, "I am afraid I can't speak for my wife. I believe she has commitments in Hollywood the last of this month. For my part, however, I expect to stay just as long as you'll let me. This looks like a real story, and I seem to be the only newshound on the scene. Maybe it'll be one of those 'scoops' the movies are always talking about."

"Swell!" said Hugh, and stood up. "You're all a bunch of regular fellows and I appreciate it. You'll be guarded, however. The new boatman you hired, Forman, is one of our men. He's got a system rigged up by which he can summon help from the mainland at a moment's notice."

They all trooped down to the pier with Hugh to see him off. And when the boat carrying him to the mainland had become a small dot in the distance, they turned and looked at each other.

"What do we do now?" asked Betsy.

Terry laughed and slid her hand through Bill's uninjured arm. "Well, I don't know just what you're going to do, but as for Bill and me, we're going to take up our honeymoon where it was so unpleasantly interrupted. So long, folks—see you later."

"A shameless wench," Bill apologized for her as she turned away. "But it's the way she was brought up. You'll excuse her, I hope."

The others trailed away. June and Donald walked without speaking until they were out of ear shot of the others. June stopped then and looked up at Donald. There was pain and hurt in her eyes as she said quietly, "So you read Henderson's telegram. That wasn't very sporting of you, Don. You must have known that if I had wanted you to see it, I'd have shown it to you."

Donald nodded. "But it was something I had to see. After all, June, you ARE Jacob's—"

"I'm not 'I'm Mrs. Donald Heath."

"It's no good, June," said Donald grimly. "I must have been insane to let you talk me into this."

She went white beneath the words, but Donald pretended not to see or to hear and went doggedly on. "I knew you were as far out of my reach as the stars the first time the paper sent me to interview you."

"My dearest dear," said June,

shakily, "I'm no farther away from you than the curve of your arm. I've never been. Oh, Don, dearest, we've been all over this before—again and again—"

"It's no use, June. I'll never be anything but a hack newspaper guy. The best I can ever hope for is a hundred a week—and that's not enough to buy you silk stockings."

"Then I'll wear cotton," said Don almost savagely. "Be sensible—be reasonable—use your head—"

June straightened beneath the sting in his words and her eyes met his steadily, almost coldly. "You're right. I have been childish. I've used my heart instead of my head. I roped you into this marriage, and I've convinced that it was all wrong—you're so very wise—no doubt you're right about that, too. I'm sorry I've been so stupid. I won't trouble you again."

She turned because the tears threatened and she wouldn't weep there before him; she had clung to him, had thrown herself into his arms, weeping, protesting her love for him; she had actually begged him to marry her. She had fought down his protests that he had nothing to give her in exchange for what she would give up by marrying him; he wouldn't be just an appendage to the career of a great musical artist. He wouldn't live her way—and he had tried to prove to her that she couldn't live his. But she had loved him so terribly that she had made a small package of her pride and had offered it to him, all wrapped in the shining gold and blue of her love. She had humbled herself, and he had married her. And now, less than a month after the wedding, he was telling her that it had been a mistake.

Well, she couldn't plead any more; couldn't humble herself any further. She had been in the very dust at his feet, and he had said that it wasn't enough. She crept back to the small, gay cottage that had been like a shrine for their love and, like a wounded animal that crawls into its burrow to nurse its pain, she went inside, closing the door against the bright, golden sunshine that seemed a mockery now.

On the beach, behind the friendly shelter of a gaily striped umbrella, Natalie, Mrs. Edmonds and Betsy lay away the rest of the afternoon, talking idly, going over and over the happenings of the night before and the things Hugh

Powell had said.

Mrs. Edmonds chuckled suddenly, though there were spots of color high on her cheeks beneath her carefully applied makeup.

"Mr. Powell looked so startled when he discovered that the major and I were honeymooners, too—not just chaperones, or visitors," she drawled. Betsy and Natalie realized that she was leading up to something that she very much wanted to say without being entirely sure how to say it. "I suppose it does seem rather absurd for two people as old as Willie and I to be honeymooning like a couple of youngsters—but Willie and I have waited a long time for a honeymoon."

"How do you know each other such a long time?" Natalie asked politely, not because she was particularly interested, but because Mrs. Edmonds seemed to expect it. "Practically since childhood—since grammar school days," said Mrs. Edmonds almost eagerly. "We were sweethearts in high school. Of course, Willie is a great deal older than I. He was finishing high school when I started. We were engaged when I was 17, and he went away to West Point."

Looking out over the lovely, restless turquoise of the sea that came rolling in on the beach in great white-topped breakers.

Betsy and Natalie waited politely. Natalie lay full-length on a gaily patterned beach mattress, her beautiful legs brown and smooth, the white of her brief linen shorts and sleeveless shirt making her look even more alluring than her formal clothes. Betsy, in a gingham play-suit, her bare feet in silly little wooden-soled clogs, leaned back against a striped canvas beach-rest, her brown legs tucked beneath her. But Mrs. Edmonds, coaxed and carefully made up, in a slimy white frock, sat rather erect in a canvas chair.

"It was at West Point two weeks before graduation that he met Estelle," said Mrs. Edmonds, and something in her tone made Betsy and Natalie exchange swift, significant glances. "She was visiting her brother during commencement week. Willie wanted me to come up, but Estelle was sick and I couldn't leave him. They passed away the following week so, in spite of what happened, I have always been glad that I didn't go. Though perhaps if I had, things might have been so different for Willie and me."

Nebraska Grange

An excellent attendance marked the meeting of Nebraska Grange Tuesday in the auditorium of Walnut School when Dr. Watson, secretary of the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University, Columbus, spoke during the lecture hour. Grangers from all over the county gathered to hear his illustrated talk on "The Symbolism of the Grange Ritual." The slides in color were beautiful. The grangers sang appropriate songs as the work of each degree was shown.

During the business hour in charge of Homer Reber, worthy master, the members decided to serve the Walnut Alumni banquet May 24 at the school. Mr. Reber discussed the repairs now in progress at the grange hall. He also urged attendance at Pomona Grange which will be May 17 at Star Grange, Monroe School.

Circle 4

A profusion of spring flowers was used throughout the home when Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger, East Main Street, entertained members and guests of Circle 4 of the Woman's Society for Christian Service of the Methodist Church Tuesday.

Mrs. Malcolm Parrett, circle chairman, was in the chair, Mrs. W. L. Sprouse reading "Our Memory Hymn." After the routine business, plans were made for a basket picnic June 10 at Logan Elm Park. The circle will omit the July and August sessions.

Mrs. Sprouse arranged the excellent program which included Mother's Day readings by Mrs. Ora Pontius, Mrs. Edwin Bach, Mrs. Ned Harden, Mrs. Glen Hines, Mrs. Harold Pontius and Mrs. Gilbert Tegard. Mrs. Sprouse read an article on "Missions." Mrs. B. F. Harden conducted a Mother's Day quiz. Mrs. Parrett played a piano solo; vocal duet, Mrs. Edwin Bach and Mrs. Sprouse.

Mrs. E. C. Wilkins discussed "Effective Landscaping with Annuals" and Miss Mary McKenzie, "Grandmother's Garden," at the Tuesday meeting of Logan Elm Grange in the Pickaway School auditorium. Forty grangers answered roll call during the business session in charge of Hoyt Timmons, worthy master.

Other interesting program numbers were piano solos by Polly Jane Kerns; reading, "Which Loved Best," Lee Smith; vocal solo, "Our Mother's Prayer," Mrs. Will Hegele, accompanied by Miss Kerns.

Mrs. Morris Taylor and her committee served refreshments during the social hour.

Child Conservation League

Mrs. Howard Newell Stevenson is the new president of the Child Conservation League, having been elected Tuesday at the meeting at the home of Mrs. Ben Gordon, Northridge Road. Others on the slate were Mrs. Robert T. Kelsey, first vice president; Mrs. Virgil M. Cress, secretary; Mrs. Lemuel Weldon, treasurer, and Mrs. Ted Huston, program chairman, with Mrs. John W. Eshelman and Mrs.

Dan Pfoutz as committee members.

Mrs. Tom Renick conducted the business session, during which the group decided to contribute to the redecorating fund of Berger Hospital. The league also decided to donate money to train an instructor who will lead a Girl Scout troop to be formed in the near future.

Another contribution planned was a donation to apply on the milk bill of the Circleville Benevolent Association.

Nineteen members were present for the important business session and the deeply interesting forum conducted by Mrs. H. W. Heffner, Mrs. Glen Geib and Mrs. Bishop Given on "Adolescent Problems."

Mrs. Heffner gave the parents' viewpoint, Mrs. Geib, the boys' and Mrs. Given, the girls'. At the conclusion of their talks, a discussion between the three brought out many interesting questions.

Seventy At Westminster Bible Class' Banquet

Music, Readings
Provide Fine
Program

Massed arrangements of iris, lilacs and spirea in the background, bowls of tulips together with tall white candles on the tables marked the effective decorations for the annual Mother's Day banquet of the Westminster Bible Class Tuesday in the social room of the Presbyterian Church. Seventy guests were seated for the dinner served at 6:30 p. m., tiny candles in gumdrop holders marking each cover.

Mrs. E. E. Porter gave a splendid toast to "Mothers" during the after-dinner program for which Mrs. Orin W. Dreisbach, class president, served as toastmaster. A delightful toast to "Daughters" was given by Mrs. Robert T. Kelsey. The Rev. Mr. Kelsey, class teacher, offered brief remarks.

The first program number was a group of three songs by Mrs. Clark Will who sang "She Never Told Her Love", Hayden, "East Wind", Harding, and "Mid-Summer", Worth, with Miss Abbe Mills Clarke as her piano accompanist.

Mrs. Tom Renick was heard in two readings, "Mother's Memorandum" and "The Horrors of Youth", delightfully entertaining selections.

A group of three piano numbers, "The Black Key Etude", Chopin, "Songs My Mother Taught Me" and "To a Water Lily", MacDowell, by Mrs. Ted Huston, concluded the affair.

The program was arranged by Mrs. Blanche Mutschman assisted by Miss Clarke and Mrs. S. M. Cryder. The decorations were arranged by Mrs. Marvin Steele, Miss Winifred Parrett and Mrs. Charles Smith. Mrs. H. O. Pile, Mrs. John T. Hulise and Mrs. Loring Evans comprised the invitation committee; Mrs. Glenn I Nickerson and Mrs. Cryder, the banquet committee, with Miss Florence Dunton in charge of the publicity.

The second division of the Ladies' Aid Society, Mrs. D. Adrian Yates, chairman, prepared the excellent dinner.

Regional Meeting

One hundred and forty-nine members of garden clubs of the ninth district gathered for the luncheon at the Chillicothe Country Club. The long tables set on the porch were decorated with arrangements of spirea and tulips. Favours of gladioli bulbs were at each cover.

The guest speakers, Mrs. Frank Garry and Mrs. William Sloan, both of Cincinnati, were presented by Mrs. Marshall G. Fenton, regional director. Mrs. Garry talking on "Artistic Arrangements from the Judges' Point of View", and Mrs. Sloan, on "Selecting and Judging Specimens."

Mrs. Garry recommended the use of the handbook, "Guide for Exhibitors and Judges", to those people interested in judging or exhibiting arrangements. She explained that judges are on the look-out for harmony between the container or background and plant material. Illustrating her talk, Mrs. Garry showed flowers in various arrangements and prepared a low arrangement suitable for a mantle shelf.

Mrs. Sloan told the necessary steps in growing and caring for flowers to be exhibited as specimens. Among the points which she emphasized were: cultivation, fertilization and disbudding.

The best procedure to grow thrifty clumps of perennials from seed is to sow the seed in a frame, transplant the seedlings into nursery rows when small, and cultivate them for a season. They will make thrifty clumps, with a good ball of roots, ready for moving into permanent quarters in the fall or next spring.

THURSDAY CHOSEN FOR OFFICIAL OPENING OF LEGION CLUBROOM

WAR VETERANS OWN FIRST HOME IN LONG HISTORY

SEVEN ROOMS READY

Post To Retain Its Meeting Place In Memorial Hall; Sapp Is Custodian

Howard Hall Post, American Legion, has set Thursday evening from 7 o'clock to 1 o'clock as the time for the official opening of its new clubrooms at 210 1/2 North Court Street.

Seven rooms have been completely remodeled and handsomely furnished by the war veterans for a club, the first the post has had since its organization 22 years ago.

The club represents an outlay of several thousand dollars in remodeling and furnishing expense, the quarters being equipped with the most modern furniture available.

The quarters include a large grill room 30 by 40 feet square, three lounge rooms across the Court Street side, a woman's lounge and powder room on the north side, a men's room and a kitchen, all completely furnished.

A color scheme of burgundy predominates, that color being on the walls, with the ceiling being in a gray. The furniture is a modernistic chrome, upholstered in burgundy and gold.

The Legion post plans to retain its rooms in Memorial Hall as its regular meeting place, the clubrooms to be closed during the regular meetings.

The location of the rooms is marked by a fluorescent sign in red, white and blue, a gift of the Post's auxiliary.

Howard Sapp has been named as custodian, members of the post having chosen a man with much experience in club work.

Members of the committee in charge of the clubroom development were Earl A. Smith, chairman, T. E. Wilson and Robert K. Young.

At one time pins were so expensive that only the wealthy could afford to purchase them, and their sale was limited to Jan. 1 and 2 of each year. On those days women got their allowance from their husbands to buy pins, hence the term, "pin money."

Child Welfare One Of Legion's Big Projects

The American Legion has repeatedly pledged itself to an effective program of Child Welfare and Prevention of Delinquency. It is one of the important objectives the organization has. The future safety of those principles of freedom and democracy depends on the kind of citizens our children will become. A 100 percent Americanism cannot be expected if children of today grow up underfed and under clothed, sickly, and under conditions which promote indigence and crime.

It is therefore the duty of Legionnaires to see that every child's right to a healthy mind and body, and to happiness and security is protected.

Many books have been written about Child Welfare and Prevention of Delinquency. For practical purposes and brevity the work in Child Welfare to be done by the Legion, the Auxiliary and 40 and S, may be considered under four general subjects—Problems of Inadequate Clothing, Food and Shelter; Health; Social Adjustment and Training for Good Citizenship; Rehabilitation of Delinquents.

Program and Limitations
The Legion calls attention to a few general principles which all officers and committees should keep in mind constantly if their work is to be successful.

The program must be continuous from day to day and year to year. A Christmas party once a year is not "Child Welfare." It is therefore important that chairmen and members of committees be chosen because of genuine interest and ability and not to satisfy their wish for recognition and publicity.

It is apparent that there are many other public and private organizations interested and working for Child Welfare. The American Legion cannot and should not attempt to take over their jobs. Its purpose is to help make their work more efficient in reaching all of the children in the community who need their services. This can be done by calling their attention to existing problems and by helping them meet these problems by securing adequate budgets and financial support from public and private sources.

An effective program does not involve direct expenditure of money by the Legion as an organization except to cover the actual expense of its own officers and for those activities which the Post votes to carry on or contribute to. The most important contribution the Legion can make in any community is to get the cooperation of all agencies in forming a central or coordinating committee to consider all the needs of children, make plans to meet those needs, and divide the work so as to avoid duplication. Plans of organization of such committees or Community Coordinating Councils may be obtained from the Department Child Welfare Director, Department Headquarters.

Public and Private agencies are governed by law and the rules of their organizations.

The first college in the United States to establish a course in hotel administration was Cornell, in 1922.

EBERT HEADS COMMITTEE PLANNING MAY 30 RITES

E. C. Ebert, a past commander of Howard Hall Post, is making arrangements for annual observance of Memorial Day by the post. Mr. Ebert has been appointed as chairman of the committee by James T. Shea, post commander.

It is expected that a widely known speaker will be obtained that several bands will participate including the post's own drum corps.

The event is annually a colorful one that attracts large crowds.

Governmental Tasks Taught To Juniors; History Of Event Traced

One of the major undertakings of the American Legion is its Buckeye Boys' State, an extensive training school for the study of state, county and city governmental administration, all encompassed in a fictional 49th state. The purpose is to create leaders in the serious business of good citizenship, though the study and actual application of the principles of the Constitution Bill of Rights and the statutes and frameworks of state, county and city governments.

The boys elect complete sets of officers, draft bills and enact them into law, hold courts, conduct trials, etc.

The event this year will be held June 14 to 24 at the state fairgrounds in Columbus.

The post, working with school officials and the Rotary Club, has chosen Frank Geib and William Burget, juniors in Circleville high school, by virtue of their scholarship and other attainments. Expenses of one of the boys is financed by the Legion and the other by the Rotary Club.

Officials Assist

The teachers are state, county and city officials, including supreme court judges, members of the general assembly and highway patrol, and specialists in many fields of governmental administration, all donating their services. Dean of Boys' State is W. L. DeWeese, junior activities director of the Legion in Ohio.

It is financed largely with funds raised by American Legion Posts, other Legion organizations, local clubs and other groups and individuals who believe in this method of inculcating good citizenship. The cost of sending each boy is $15.

History of the Buckeye Boys' State goes back six years, when the Ohio Department and three other state American Legion organizations sponsored these unique schools. This year, Boys' States will be operated by Legionnaires in 34 States.

Buckeye Boys' State is greatly indebted to Gov. John W. Bricker and many departments of the state government for use of the Fair Grounds and for other acts of assistance and courtesies which make it possible.

Visitors are invited to attend all evening events at Boys' State, particularly the campaign rallies Sunday, June 15, and Governor's inaugural the next night. Programs start at 8 p. m.

Circleville's Legion Post this year has joined in the national organization's Junior Baseball activity, one of the most popular and worthwhile projects of the National Americanism program.

Byron Eby is in charge of development of a team of youngsters that promises to make a good showing.

The Legion is striving to add many more boys each year to this program in an effort to extend its Americanism program.

The code of sportsmanship includes: Keep the rules, keep faith with your comrades, keep your temper, keep yourself fit, keep a stout heart in defeat, keep your pride under in victory, keep a sound soul, a clean mind, and a healthy body.

Competition is open to boys who are amateur and who have not attained their seventeenth birthday before January 1, 1941. Uniforms are unnecessary but if used must conform to national rules.

William Skinner of New Holland is chairman of District No. 7 in which Circleville is located. Ten other district chairmen are named in Toledo, Van Wert, Springfield, Cincinnati, Mansfield, Columbus, Logan, Cleveland, Steubenville and Zanesville.

Since New Holland will likely have a Legion team this year it is probable that a county elimination will be played, the winner to take part in additional tournaments. The department championship series will be played in Columbus.

The metric system of weights and measures is used in the Philippines.

LAST TWO SURVIVORS OF CIVIL WAR LIVE AT DERBY

Pickaway County can boast of only two survivors of another famous war-inspired organization, the Grand Army of the Republic.

They are David East and Lafayette Funk, both of whom are residents of Derby.

Mr. East will be 94 years old September 2, and Mr. Funk will observe his 95th birthday this month.

Brief American Legion History

Early historians and officials of The American Legion relate that the germ of the idea of a veterans' organization — to represent the citizen soldiers of the United States who fought in the armed forces of our country during the World War — was present among more thoughtful participants in that great adventure even while plans were yet being perfected to carry on the battle campaigns leading to the Armistice of November 11, 1918.

According to the late George S. Wheat, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., then a Lieutenant-Colonel in the A.E.F., was one of these. Wheat relates the incident of a conversation between Roosevelt and William Patterson, then a Sergeant, which took place while these two were convalescent from wounds, at a base hospital in Paris in mid-summer of 1918. They agreed they were anxious to get back to their outposts to "get the whole job over" and then "go home and start a veterans' association for the good of the country."

The idea of establishing an all-inclusive veterans' organization occurred to many but it remained for a group of twenty members of the A.E.F. to deal with the idea in a concrete manner. And Theodore Roosevelt Jr., was the veteran of that small group who provided the organizing genius, the unselfish spirit, the magic of the honorable bearing of a great American name, that permitted The American Legion to have a successful founding, along lines so sound that they never have been altered basically.

With the Armistice there came a let-down in the morale of the men who composed the A.E.F. In their view the task for which they had come to France was completed. Mostly, they could not appreciate the magnitude of the problem involved in demobilization of such a huge force. They wanted no part of peace-time soldiering. Home was the goal not immediately attainable which made them restless, discontented.

General Headquarters of the A.E.F. thought something should be done to better conditions as a cushion against the rising discontent; and thus, in its plans to make the A.E.F. less unattractive in the period that must elapse while bottoms were provided to return our forces to home shores, the high command of the army provided the opportunity, the occasion which was to see the burgeoning of the idea that resulted in the birth of The American Legion.

The Paris Caucus
Twenty National Guard and Reserve officers, representing ten infantry divisions, the S. O. S., and other organizations, were detailed by General Headquarters to a meeting in Paris. There they were to confer with others of the Regular Army.

This meeting occurred February 15 and 16, 1919. After reviewing the situation the group drafted a series of recommendations designed to alter the lot of members of the A.E.F. for the better. Their immediate task accomplished, a pleasant evening in Paris was in prospect when Theodore Roosevelt, one of them, invited the group to attend a dinner at the Allied Officers' Club.

No hint of his purpose was disclosed until the tables were cleared, though some discussion of the idea he had in mind had taken place among a few of those present. There was revealed his thought that the time was propitious for crystallization of the widespread sentiment that there should be an organization of veterans, dedicated in peace to the same ideals that had inspired their services in war.

At that dinner the idea for The American Legion was born. In the discussion that followed presentation of the ideas, some opposition developed, but most of the twenty were quick to pledge their support. The twenty became a committee to spread through the A.E.F. the message that a caucus would be held March 15, 1919, in Paris, for further discussion and development of the idea.

It was assumed that the contemplated March caucus would name delegates to attend a joint caucus in the United States to be composed of delegates from all parts of the country, from troops that had not seen overseas service, and from the Navy and Marine Corps. Those entrusted with plans for the March caucus met with indifference, distrust, suspicion, in some quarters. They countered successfully these attitudes and others which gave rise to rumors that this was to be an officer-dominated affair, or that it was designed to provide an organization for use of those who would deliver the soldier vote for some selfish political purpose. It is interesting to note that one of the small group of twenty, at the first discussion of the idea, advanced the thought that its fundamental purpose should be to work for universal service.

Heroic measures were taken by this self-constituted and unselfish group to stimulate enthusiasm for the meeting. They were hampered by the fact that they were still in the military service; that those they sought to reach as delegates were men under military control for whom leaves and furloughs must be provided.

Ultimate result of their efforts was that during March 15, 16, and 17, a great caucus was held in the Cirque de Paris, Paris, France, with approximately 1,000 officers and enlisted men representative of the A.E.F. in attendance.

Name Selected

Eric Fisher Wood called the caucus to order in the absence of Theodore Roosevelt, who had returned to the United States to spread the idea and to plan for the first caucus in the United States. Temporary organization of the caucus followed with selection of Bennett C. Clark as chairman and Eric Fisher Wood as secretary. Clark had only just taken the chair as presiding officer when a motion to eliminate all considerations of rank was proposed and adopted. Then proceeded the deliberations which resulted in adoption of a temporary constitution, along lines closely approximating those finally adopted permanently. Spirited discussion preceded the action of the Paris caucus in accepting the name "The American Legion." Permanent policies were left open for discussion and consideration later when there should be a more representative caucus in the United States.

Milton J. Foreman headed an executive committee for 100 having as its object completion of the organization in the A.E.F. A subcommittee of 17 returned to the United States to promote interest among those not assigned to overseas service. Pending permanent organization every member of the A.E.F. was to be considered a potential member.

In the United States there followed an intensive campaign to acquaint the veterans with the purposes of the proposed organization. Committees and delegations to represent each state in the caucus that was to come were named. The daily press carried news of the organization. Official assistance was given to distribution of the news of the organization.

All this occurred in the period when the United States was adjusting itself with difficulty to early post-war conditions. Mushroom organizations of veterans competed for attention. Nearly 5,000,000 men and women were to be reabsorbed into civilian life. Many disabled stood in need of, and lacked, hospitalization and care. Talk of Bolshevism and expression of radical thoughts were general. The American people were vitally concerned with the kind of an organization this would be.

The advance committee of two from each State met in St. Louis, May 6. Plans were made in its deliberations for the general caucus of May 8, 9, and 10. Roosevelt opened the general caucus and immediately there was a stampede to elect him permanent chairman. When finally elected amid wild acclaim he resigned immediately. Henry D. Lindsley, of Texas, was then elected chairman and the caucus proceeded to an exposition of the aims and ideals of the organization. A tentative constitution was adopted for permanent organization. Immediate reaction of the country to the decisions of the caucus was praise for its action in rejecting radicalism; for placing itself on record as a great patriotic organization dedicating its efforts to "God and Country."

Aims And Purposes

In the months following the St. Louis caucus temporary headquarters were operated in New York City and the work of organization went forward rapidly. By act of Congress, The American Legion was chartered September 16, 1919. That charter gave official sanction to the Constitution of The American Legion adopted at the St. Louis Caucus, containing the Preamble; which has taken rank as one of the great literary documents in the history of the United States.

Clearly, eloquently, concisely the Preamble set forth the reasons for the creation of The American Legion when it stated:

"For God and Country we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred percent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state, and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom, and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness."

The troop is one of Circleville's oldest and has some of the city's outstanding Boy Scouts as its members.

LEGION TAKING MAJOR INTEREST IN CONSERVATION

The Ohio Department of the American Legion entered the field of conservation for the first time with the recent appointment of Walter K. Harris, Summit Post, as its State Conservation Chairman.

The appointment was announced by Ralph D. Stone, State commander of the Legion. This move is expected to pave the way for an intensive conservation program on a state-wide basis in the near future.

One of the first undertakings of the new Ohio committee will be to assist in the sponsorship of a series of sportsmen's shows over the state. The series started with the Akron Sportsman Show.

The conservation work, which now has been made state-wide, first was started by Harris as a member of Summit Post. He has headed a local committee for several years during which time he has served as a state conservation officer.

Brief American Legion History

Early historians and officials of the A.E.F. for the better. Their immediate task accomplished, a pleasant evening in Paris was in prospect when Theodore Roosevelt, one of them, invited the group to attend a dinner at the Allied Officers' Club.

No hint of his purpose was disclosed until the tables were cleared, though some discussion of the idea he had in mind had taken place among a few of those present. There was revealed his thought that the time was propitious for crystallization of the wide-spread sentiment that there should be an organization of veterans, dedicated in peace to the same ideals that had inspired their services in war.

At that dinner the idea for The American Legion was born. In the discussion that followed presentation of the ideas, some opposition developed, but most of the twenty were quick to pledge their support. The twenty became a committee to spread through the A.E.F. the message that a caucus would be held March 15, 1919, in Paris, for further discussion and development of the idea.

It was assumed that the contemplated March caucus would name delegates to attend a joint caucus in the United States to be composed of delegates from all parts of the country, from troops that had not seen overseas service, and from the Navy and Marine Corps. Those entrusted with plans for the March caucus met with indifference, distrust, suspicion, in some quarters. They countered successfully these attitudes and others which gave rise to rumors that this was to be an officer-dominated affair, or that it was designed to provide an organization for use of those who would deliver the soldier vote for some selfish political purpose. It is interesting to note that one of the small group of twenty, at the first discussion of the idea, advanced the thought that its fundamental purpose should be to work for universal service.

Heroic measures were taken by this self-constituted and unselfish group to stimulate enthusiasm for the meeting. They were hampered by the fact that they were still in the military service; that those they sought to reach as delegates were men under military control for whom leaves and furloughs must be provided.

Ultimate result of their efforts was that during March 15, 16, and 17, a great caucus was held in the Cirque de Paris, Paris, France, with approximately 1,000 officers and enlisted men representative of the A.E.F. in attendance.

Name Selected

Eric Fisher Wood called the caucus to order in the absence of Theodore Roosevelt, who had returned to the United States to rejecting radicalism; for placing itself on record as a great patriotic organization dedicating its efforts to "God and Country."

Aims And Purposes

In the months following the St. Louis caucus temporary headquarters were operated in New York City and the work of organization went forward rapidly. By act of Congress, The American Legion was chartered September 16, 1919. That charter gave official sanction to the Constitution of The American Legion adopted at the St. Louis Caucus, containing the Preamble; which has taken rank as one of the great literary documents in the history of the United States.

Clearly, eloquently, concisely the Preamble set forth the reasons for the creation of The American Legion when it stated:

"For God and Country we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred percent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state, and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom, and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness."

LEGION TAKING MAJOR INTEREST IN CONSERVATION

The Ohio Department of the American Legion entered the field of conservation for the first time with the recent appointment of Walter K. Harris, Summit Post, as its State Conservation Chairman. The appointment was announced by Ralph D. Stone, State commander of the Legion. This move is expected to pave the way for an intensive conservation program on a state-wide basis in the near future.

One of the first undertakings of the new Ohio committee will be to assist in the sponsorship of a series of sportsmen's shows over the state. The series started with the Akron Sportsman Show.

The conservation work, which now has been made state-wide, first was started by Harris as a member of Summit Post. He has headed a local committee for several years during which time he has served as a state conservation officer.

HERMAN TRADE INSISTED ON BY NEW CUB CHIEF

By Edward W. Cochran

CHICAGO, May 7 — While the latest trade engineered by the Cubs in which Billy Herman, veteran second baseman, goes to Brooklyn in exchange for Charley Gilbert and Johnny Hudson and cash, appears on the surface to be just another one of those deals which the fans live to regret, it seems that one of the reasons for the trade was to break up a clique and rid the Bruins of a man who could not forget his managerial ambitions, which never could be realized here.

The clique, according to advices that are authoritative, involved Herman, Dizzy Dean and two other veteran players, with Herman appearing in the role of club house lawyer. This appears to have irritated Manager Jimmy Wilson no little. His club has been losing and looking very bad and he no doubt felt it was time for him to take the bull by the horns, so to speak, and do something about it.

This no doubt, was one of the things that caused Wilson to insist on the deal. The deal, which wrecked many a ball club and Wilson is not the type to tolerate anything that would not work for the best interest of his team.

Looking at the deal strictly from a playing standpoint, it is difficult to see where it will work to the best interest of the Cubs.

Present Game Seasons Favored By Sportsmen

Most Pickaway County farmers and sportsmen favor the present game seasons, according to a survey of 43 hunters, 16 farmers and 27 sportsmen, made by County Conservation officials. Thirty-eight of the total number answering the questionnaires said they favored the same pheasant season as last year rather than a staggered system as was used in 1939. Most of them were opposed to a longer season for pheasants.

Thirty-three believed the rabbit season should open and close the same as last year, while ten favored a shorter season for rabbit. No change in the dates of the squirrel season was recommended by 39 of the hunters, and all but three of them favored the same season as last year for raccoon.

Farmers were contacted by 41 of the 43 sportsmen before the opening of the hunting season, according to the answers on the questionnaires. Supervised hunting areas, which have not been conducted on a wide scale in Pickaway County, were favored by thirty six.

Twelve-gauge shotguns are the most popular, according to the survey, twenty-eight of the hunters reporting that they carried that gauge gun. Hunting dogs were owned by 26 of the hunters. Setters were the most popular, with beagles and pointers next in order.

About 1,300 channel catfish have been placed in Big Darby Creek and Deer Creek. One hundred channel cats were placed in Little Walnut and 75 in the canal. A shipment of crappies for Pickaway County is expected momentarily.

The engineering department of the Ohio Division of Conservation has constructed a wing on the canal dam to prevent it from washing out during high water. A foot-bridge was built across the canal and some riprap work done along the banks. The Farmers' and Sportsmen's Association is planning to have the weeds and brush cleared away from the dam for a distance of 2½ miles.

Mr. Moats of Stoutsville landed a 16 pound shovel head catfish in Big Darby last week.

INDIANS SEEKING NEW MARKS AS STREAK ENDS

CLEVELAND, May 7 — The Cleveland Indians sought new records today as three marks went by the boards in the closing game of a three-game series with the Washington Senators yesterday.

Besides losing 5-3, the Indians' pinch hitting star, Murray Howell, who led the International League batsmen last season, dropped from a 1000 percent batting average to .667. When Dutch Leonard struck him out in the ninth it was the first time in four trips to the plate he had failed to reach first base.

When the Senators scored in the ninth, it was the first run relief Pitcher Joe Heving allowed this season. Then, of course, the Indians streak of 11 straight wins was snapped.

BIG HANK CLUBS PAIR IN FINALE RE ARMY TRIP

By Pat Robinson
NEW YORK, May 7 — Well, Hank Greenberg certainly left them smiling as he said good-bye, didn't he?

The big boy from the Bronx capped a glorious baseball career by hitting his first and second home runs of the year in successive innings against the Yanks yesterday and each time Bruce Campbell immediately followed suit.

The result was a 7-4 shellacking for the Yanks who move into Cleveland today to find out if the Indians are as good as advertised while Greenberg moves into the Army to do his bit for Uncle Sam.

Yes, old Hank left 'em smiling, but we wonder how long they'll keep on smiling for it seems unlikely that the Tigers can stay up there without the power of Hank's big war club. It is the belief in this corner that no team can lose a Greenberg and win a pennant.

SOOSE FAVORED TO END MUDDLE IN FIGHT CLASS

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, May 7 — Billy Soose, the pride of Pennsylvania, ruled a 7 to 5 favorite today to annex Ken Overlin's New York Commission world middleweight championship on Friday night in the first step toward eventual un-muddling of the thoroughly muddled 160-pound division. Winner over Overlin in a non-title bout last July, Soose will enter the ring at even longer odds than 7 to 5, some observers insisted as the pro and con lines began to form.

In any case, plans again have been started insofar as possible to get the winner against Tony Zale, of Chicago, the N.B.A. title-holder, to establish a generally recognized champion. This phase of this particular encounter has not gone beyond the conversational stage, but will be mulled over back and forth until finally we may wind up with one champion instead of two.

Having whipped both Overlin and Zale, Soose looks like the next undisputed title-holder if he can whip Overlin and the Zale match can be made. There must be some doubt on both counts.

However, he has youth on his side, a pretty good punch and experience dating all the way back to his college days, which came to an end when he found out he wasn't eligible for the Penn State boxing team. Higher education lost a devotee with that and boxing gained a career fist fighter.

TRAMPLED RED NINE IN GOTHAM

Cincinnati Drops Another, Though Vandy Pitches Creditable Ball

NEW YORK, May 7—Defeated by the lowly Philadelphia Phils, 4 to 2, the Cincinnati Reds moved into New York and the Polo Grounds today for a series with the Giants.

Johnny Vander Meer, of no-hit fame, struck out 11 of the Phils and was nipped for only six hits. However, all six of the Phils' safeties were for extra bases, two of them homers by Nick Etten and Bobby Bragan.

The Reds scored both of their runs on homers, one by Ernie Lombardi and the other by Harry Craft. Cincinnati managed to get only three other hits off the deliveries of Veteran Cy Blanton, however.

It was the Phils' second straight victory over the World Champs and sank the Redlegs into a tie for fourth place, only a game and one-half out of the National League cellar.

Manager Bill McKechnie, who shook up his batting order again yesterday, was expected to send Bucky Walters to the mound today to oppose Hal Schumacher of the Giants.

FIREMEN GUARD HOMES AS BLAZE HITS PEA VINES

A pea vine fire which burned over an acre of ground at the Winorr Canning Company Tuesday night was under control after firemen had fought the blaze for two and one-half hours, a strong wind threatening to spread the flames to three barns and two houses in the neighborhood.

Firemen were called to the fire at 12:25 a. m. when the fire which had been started to consume pea vines in an adjoining field spread to a stack of vines. At one time while firemen were fighting the fire, the flames spread to within ten feet of two houses, firemen said.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise reported that the fire did no particular damage. While firemen were at the canning company, Merchant Policeman Walter Crissinger discovered a rubbish fire in an alley off East Main Street behind the Fritz Bakery. Fireman Clinton Strawser was sent to the fire and extinguished it within a few minutes.

Smoke from the fire at the canning company forced many residents of Logan Street from their homes, the fire chief said.

SQUADS REMAIN IN CLOSE RACE IN ASSOCIATION

COLUMBUS, May 7—Speculation in the American Association today was on when one of the eight clubs would break away from the pack and break up the close race of the first three weeks of the season.

This morning, only three and one-half games separated first place Louisville and last place Milwaukee, with the other clubs packed in between and one-half and full game intervals.

Minneapolis sank to a tie for second place with Kansas City, a full game behind the league leaders, by virtue of yesterday's 7 to 5 loss to Toledo. The Mud Hens scored five runs in the last two innings for the win. Zeke Bonura's home run in the eighth broke a four-all tie for the Millers but Toledo came right back to count three times against the relief pitcher of Bob Kline to clinch the victory. Herb Nordquist, rookie right-hander, was credited with the win and Kline with the loss.

Columbus slipped into fourth place by virtue of a 12 to 7 slugfest victory over St. Paul. Murray Dickson got credit for the win and Vede Himsel was charged with the loss. Three home runs were hit in the game. Heath connecting for Red Birds and English and Bauer for the Saints.

TITLE BOUND

By Jack Sords

BILLY SOOSE, CONQUEROR OF KEN OVERLIN IN A NON-TITLE FIGHT — HE GETS AN OFFICIAL CRACK AT THE CROWN MAY 9 IN NEW YORK.

SOOSE ALSO BEAT TONY ZALE, THE A.B.A.'S MIDDLEWEIGHT KING

NEW YORK, May 7 — Billy Soose, the pride of Pennsylvania, ruled a 7 to 5 favorite today to annex Ken Overlin's New York Commission world middleweight championship on Friday night in the first step toward eventual un-muddling of the thoroughly muddled 160-pound division. Winner over Overlin in a non-title bout last July, Soose will enter the ring at even longer odds than 7 to 5, some observers insisted as the pro and con lines began to form.

In any case, plans again have been started insofar as possible to get the winner against Tony Zale, of Chicago, the N.B.A. titleholder, to establish a generally recognized champion. This phase of this particular encounter has not gone beyond the conversational stage, but will be mulled over back and forth until finally we may wind up with one champion instead of two.

Having whipped both Overlin and Zale, Soose looks like the next undisputed title-holder if he can whip Overlin and the Zale match can be made. There must be some doubt on both counts.

However, he has youth on his side, a pretty good punch and experience dating all the way back to his college days, which came to an end when he found out he wasn't eligible for the Penn State boxing team. Higher education lost a devotee with that and boxing gained a career fist fighter.

Francis landed four nice black bass in the Scioto River. A couple from Stoutsville, fishing on the canal, was checked with 33 crappies, one bass and one catfish.

Scippo Only Zone
Only fish safety zone in Pickaway County is a half mile strip on Scippo Creek in Saltcreek Township.

Boys of the Walnut Township high school conservation club will plant two wildlife food patches this year, one on the school farm and one on the farm belonging to D. L. Steele.

E. A. Barr, Walnut Township, has allowed members of the club to use his tractor and other farming tools to prepare the food patches. In addition to these patches, Dick Noecker and Weimer Perill of the Walnut club will plant food patches at home.

About 1,300 channel catfish have been placed in Big Darby Creek and Deer Creek. One hundred channel cats were placed in Little Walnut and 75 in the canal. A shipment of crappies for Pickaway County is expected momentarily.

The engineering department of the Ohio Division of Conservation has constructed a wing on the canal dam to prevent it from washing out during high water. A foot-bridge was built across the canal and some riprap work done along the banks. The Farmers' and Sportsmen's Association is planning to have the weeds and brush cleared away from the dam for a distance of 2½ miles.

Mr. Moats of Stoutsville landed a 16 pound shovel head catfish in Big Darby last week.

INDIANS SEEKING NEW MARKS AS STREAK ENDS

CLEVELAND, May 7 — The Cleveland Indians sought new records today as three marks went by the boards in the closing game of a three-game series with the Washington Senators yesterday.

Besides losing 5-3, the Indians' pinch hitting star, Murray Howell, who led the International League batsmen last season, dropped from a 1000 percent batting average to .667. When Dutch Leonard struck him out in the ninth it was the first time in four trips to the plate he had failed to reach first base.

When the Senators scored in the ninth, it was the first run relief Pitcher Joe Heving allowed this season. Then, of course, the Indians' streak of 11 straight wins was snapped.

HEAVY ALUMNI VEN EDGES CANTON VARSITY

CANTON, May 7 — Coach Floyd Schwartzwalder began taking up the slack today in his McKinley High School varsity football club after a defeat handed them by the Alumni team before 3,500 fans. The varsity led, 12-7, at the half, but the heavier Alumni eleven pushed over two touchdowns in the second half to win, 21-12.

LEADING BATSMEN
American League — Travis, Washington 477; Heath, Cleveland 407; Cronin, Boston 396; DiMaggio, Boston 389; Sibert, Philadelphia 378.
National League — Slaughter, St. Louis 413; Jurgens, New York 382; Etten, Philadelphia 370; Lavagetto, Brooklyn 369; Vaughn, Pittsburgh, 345.

SOOSE FAVORED TO END MUDDLE IN FIGHT CLASS

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, May 7 — Billy Soose, the pride of Pennsylvania, ruled a 7 to 5 favorite today to annex Ken Overlin's New York Commission world middleweight championship on Friday night in the first step toward eventual un-muddling of the thoroughly muddled 160-pound division. Winner over Overlin in a non-title bout last July, Soose will enter the ring at even longer odds than 7 to 5, some observers insisted as the pro and con lines began to form.

TRAMPLED RED NINE IN GOTHAM

Cincinnati Drops Another, Though Vandy Pitches Creditable Ball

NEW YORK, May 7—Defeated by the lowly Philadelphia Phils, 4 to 2, the Cincinnati Reds moved into New York and the Polo Grounds today for a series with the Giants.

Johnny Vander Meer, of no-hit fame, struck out 11 of the Phils and was nipped for only six hits. However, all six of the Phils' safeties were for extra bases, two of them homers by Nick Etten and Bobby Bragan.

The Reds scored both of their runs on homers, one by Ernie Lombardi and the other by Harry Craft. Cincinnati managed to get only three other hits off the deliveries of Veteran Cy Blanton, however.

It was the Phils' second straight victory over the World Champs and sank the Redlegs into a tie for fourth place, only a game and one-half out of the National League cellar.

Manager Bill McKechnie, who shook up his batting order again yesterday, was expected to send Bucky Walters to the mound today to oppose Hal Schumacher of the Giants.

FIREMEN GUARD HOMES AS BLAZE HITS PEA VINES

A pea vine fire which burned over an acre of ground at the Winorr Canning Company Tuesday night was under control after firemen had fought the blaze for two and one-half hours, a strong wind threatening to spread the flames to three barns and two houses in the neighborhood.

Firemen were called to the fire at 12:25 a. m. when the fire which had been started to consume pea vines in an adjoining field spread to a stack of vines. At one time while firemen were fighting the fire, the flames spread to within ten feet of two houses, firemen said.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise reported that the fire did no particular damage. While firemen were at the canning company, Merchant Policeman Walter Crissinger discovered a rubbish fire in an alley off East Main Street behind the tomatoes, 20,000,000 cases of evaporated milk, 50,000,000 pounds of lard, 250,000,000 pounds of cheese, several million pounds of Wilshire cured ham, millions of powdered eggs, and thousands of tons of dehydrated vegetable soup, dried raisins and prunes.

Fritz Bakery. Fireman Clinton Strawser was sent to the fire and extinguished it within a few minutes. Smoke from the fire at the canning company forced many residents of Logan Street from their homes, the fire chief said.

While gigantic in itself, the program is only about three percent of the U. S. food bill, which in 1940 was $12,000,000,000. However, unless the buying is done adroitly, serious dislocation of domestic food supplies, with resultant runaway prices, could easily develop.

The two men entrusted with avoiding these pitfalls are Milo Perkins, plain-talking Surplus Marketing Administrator (who will shortly be given another title, "Administrator of Food Marketing"), and Leon Henderson, hard-boiled Defense price regulator. Working together and armed with wide powers, they will be a tough team to buck.

NOTE—Speculative activity is blamed for the few food prices that so far have gotten out of line, and a crack-down is in the works. *
HUGHES LAUGHS
Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes is by all odds the most dignified member of the Supreme Court. A paragon of august reserve, he can sit for hours listening to arguments without once changing expression. It is the younger Justices, Hugo Black and William Douglas, who lead in the Court's occasional smiles.
But the dignified Chief Justice broke down the other day and treated himself to a hearty belly laugh.
Representative John Tolan of California, as "a friend of the court," was arguing a case involving the constitutionality of a California statute forbidding transportation of a pauper across the state line. Just before Tolan appeared, the Court had been listening to a series of weighty arguments on "due process," interstate commerce regulations, and other dry legalisms.
The genial, white-haired Californian, who heads a committee investigating migrant labor conditions, quickly cleared the musty atmosphere.
"Now, I do not intend to discuss the issue of constitutionality in this case," began Tolan. "Fact is I don't know anything about the Constitution." Then, looking straight at Hughes, he added with a grin, "I've been in Congress too long."
Such frankness was too much for Hughes. Leaning back in his chair, he laughed until he shook.

HOUSE PASSES RETIREMENT ACT FOR PATROLMEN

Bill To Set Up System Goes To Senate; Rate Established

SESSION ACTIVE ONE
State Highway Director, County Commissioners Given New Powers

COLUMBUS, May 7—A bill to establish a retirement system for members of the State Highway Patrol had been passed by the House today and sent to the Senate.

The bill, by Representative Richard H. Hildebrand (R-Clinton), and A. Lee Fair (D-Holmes), would provide for pensions at the age of 55, after 20 years of service, and disability benefits. Pensions would be based on 50 percent of the patrolman's average salary over the preceding 15 years.

The officers would contribute 4 percent of their salary to the pension fund, with the state matching this in an equal amount.

Provisions intended to continue pension payments to widows and orphans on the death of patrolmen were stricken out of the measure by amendment before the House passed it by a vote of 100 to 11.

Other bills passed by the House included measures to:

Authorize municipalities to issue bonds to reconstruct bridges; give attorneys who are commissioned notaries public the authority to act as notaries anywhere in Ohio; conform Ohio old age pension laws with the Social Security Act; give municipalities authority to purchase, rent or condemn property within one mile of municipally-owned airports, and permit schools to receive interest on trust funds and land rentals without having it charged against them in computing school foundation disbursements.

The House concurred in Senate amendments to bills to confirm the sale of canal land to the city of Dayton; to authorize the state highway director to construct and maintain connecting roads in cases of highway relocation, and to authorize county commissioners to construct and maintain connecting roads between new and old locations.

Bus Bill Beaten
A bill that would have authorized school boards to contract debts for the purchase of buses, outside of the uniform bond act, was defeated by the House by a vote of 45 to 58.

House conferees on the joint committee that will consider rejected Senate amendments to the general appropriations bill, were named as follows: Representatives Paul H. Ballard (R-Jackson); W. H. Knepper (R-Williams); and A. Lee Fair (D-Holmes).

On receipt of a message that the Senate had rejected its amendments to the Hoffman uniform traffic code, the House requested a conference committee. The Senate named the following conferees: Senators Robert H. Hoffman (R-Columbus); Fred R. Seibert (R-St. Marys); O. E. Whitacre (D-Minerva). President Paul M. Herbert subsequently held up the appointments after Whitacre asked to be excused from service.

The Senate, meeting in both afternoon and evening sessions yesterday, joined with the House in accepting a conference committee report on the Seibert bill to require telegraph companies to file rate schedules with the public utilities commission, and passed bills to:

Authorize county commissioners to build access roads to new highways; provide for the sale and transfer of building and loan association assets in order to obtain federal insurance; provide for filling vacancies in county offices on recommendations of the chairman of the party with which the incumbent was affiliated at the time of election; provide for licensing and regulating rest homes under the supervision of the state welfare department; create a state nurses' board and to regulate professional nursing practice; regulate trade practices in the marketing of cream and milk; appropriate $580,000 due the teachers' and school employees retirement systems; permit laundries and cleaning establishments to sell clothing and other articles unclaimed for 90 days by giving a 30-day notice to the owner.

Mrs. Anna Cordray, now soon eighty-five years of age and a resident of Ashville for a long while, had a hard fall at her home on East Street a couple of days ago but no serious damage resulted other than shock and a few bruises. She is being cared for by her daughter, Mrs. Reed.

The pest hunting youngsters in raiding hen roosts collecting in quite a few of "the old varments", should have a real alibi. As garden digger-ups, pest is right, and roosting in fruit trees, "ain't nice either". And then again, these old pests are out early in the morning devouring every fish worm in sight and that is sure bad, too. But the "kindly advice" the boys received in Judge Weldon's court, should have a wholesome effect, both on the lease of life for the old hen pests and the youngsters.

COLUMBUS MAY HAVE DIFFICULT LABOR PROBLEM

COLUMBUS, May 7—If their demands for pay increases are not met, unionized employees of the Columbus municipal light plant will strike at 7 a. m. June 17, they warned today.

At a meeting, the employees, who are affiliated with the Columbus Federation of Labor, criticized the municipal wage survey now under way and demanded that the labor federation be given equal representation on a civic committee named by Mayor Floyd F. Green to cooperate in the survey.

Plans also were made to spread the threatened strike to three other divisions of the municipal government. Union officials said a strike vote in the pumping station of the division of water, the incinerator and the building department will be taken before the June deadline. They expressed confidence these groups will join in the walkout action.

President John C. Getreu of the federation told the employees that he thought it advisable to first cut off current to street lights, traffic light and municipal buildings if the light plant strike is called so that commercial users would not suffer.

A one-day strike was called by the plant about a month ago but employees returned to work pending completion of the wage survey.

tomatoes, 20,000,000 cases of evaporated milk, 50,000,000 pounds of lard, 250,000,000 pounds of cheese, several million pounds of Wilshire cured ham, millions of powdered eggs, and thousands of tons of dehydrated vegetable soup, dried raisins and prunes.

While gigantic in itself, the program is only about three percent of the U. S. food bill, which in 1940 was $12,000,000,000. However, unless the buying is done adroitly, serious dislocation of domestic food supplies, with resultant runaway prices, could easily develop. The two men entrusted with avoiding these pitfalls are Milo Perkins, plain-talking Surplus Marketing Administrator (who will shortly be given another title, "Administrator of Food Marketing"), and Leon Henderson, hard-boiled Defense price regulator. Working together and armed with wide powers, they will be a tough team to buck.

NOTE—Speculative activity is blamed for the few food prices that so far have gotten out of line, and a crack-down is in the works.

HUGHES LAUGHS

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes is by all odds the most dignified member of the Supreme Court. A paragon of august reserve, he can sit for hours listening to arguments without once changing expression. It is the younger Justices, Hugo Black and William Douglas, who lead in the Court's occasional smiles.

But the dignified Chief Justice broke down the other day and treated himself to a hearty belly laugh.

Representative John Tolan of California, as "a friend of the court," was arguing a case involving the constitutionality of a California statute forbidding transportation of a pauper across the state line. Just before Tolan appeared, the Court had been listening to a series of weighty arguments on "due process," interstate commerce regulations, and other dry legalisms.

The genial, white-haired Californian, who heads a committee investigating migrant labor conditions, quickly cleared the musty atmosphere.

"Now, I do not intend to discuss the issue of constitutionality in this case," began Tolan. "Fact is I don't know anything about the Constitution." Then looking straight at Hughes he added with a grin, "I've been in Congress too long."

Such frankness was too much for Hughes. Leaning back in his chair, he laughed until he shook.

CIRCLEVILLE HIGH FRESHMAN WINS ELKS 'AMERICANISM' CONTEST

BOYS AND GIRLS ENTERTAINED AT HOME OF LODGE

Judge Dana Reynolds Of Columbus Speaks To Assemblage

MUSIC, LUNCH ENJOYED
Awards Of $15, $10, $5 Made To Three With Best Papers

Gerald Reynolds, 15-year-old freshman in Circleville High School, was awarded first prize Tuesday night in the Circleville Elks essay contest on "What Uncle Sam Means to Me."

Gerald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reynolds of Wayne Township. He was valedictorian of the eighth grade at Wayne Township last year. The first prize award was $15.

Second prize of $10 went to Don Wells, 18, senior in Circleville High School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wells of Circleville Route 3.

Ned Stout, 15, Circleville freshman and son of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington H. Stout of East Mound Street, was awarded third prize of $5.

The awards were made at a gathering of 189 essay writers and Circleville Elks at the Elks Lodge. A. W. Bosworth, English instructor at Ohio State University, presented the prizes, with each winner reading his essay after his award was made.

Responsibilities Cited

Principal speaker at the meeting was Judge Dana Reynolds of Columbus. Judge Reynolds in speaking to the 189 boys and girls of the audience, pointed to the duties and responsibilities of American youth in preserving democracy. "In preserving democracy, the last great hope of civilization," the speaker remarked, "it is up to us to stand up and be counted as loyal American citizens."

He warned his youthful audience against those who "esteem to lightly the freedom and liberties of our government" and flayed those "who come to this country to enjoy its liberties and at the same time scoff at its ideals, mock its leaders, and undermine its very foundation."

He concluded: "You owe it to your country as an American citizen, to see that Uncle Sam stands as a beacon for liberty throughout the world."

Music, Lunch Enjoyed

The musical portion of the program was furnished by the Elks chorus, following the meeting a buffet luncheon was served to the guests.

The winning essay has been sent to state headquarters where it will be judged along with other local winners for a state award.

The Reynolds boys' essay follows:

WHAT UNCLE SAM MEANS TO ME

Although Uncle Sam is a symbol familiarized by humans, it is probably the most cherished symbol in the hearts of the American people. To me it is the basic means by which I can live, love and work.

I consider it a wonderful opportunity to be able to follow my own ideas and ideals in educational activity. In most countries the viewpoints are biased and the schools only present the ideas and viewpoints of the state of government. I can select my own career and have the chance of free education to help me attain my goals in that career. I have the wide choice and a freedom of choice of subjects to help me broaden my intellectual attitude. In Germany the girls are not given the privilege of choosing and following a public career. I am indeed grateful that a sister of mine has the same opportunities that I have.

I am also grateful for the chance to follow my own religious beliefs. To most of us young Americans that is indeed a blessing. In our country we have a wide variety of churches; in some countries they have one church and that is operated by the state. It would truly be a handicap to be unable to worship God in the way that I believe. We shudder to think of people being persecuted because they followed their own beliefs, but we find that in some of the other countries.

Today we enjoy the radio, electrical appliances, furnaces, the telephone, cars, and many other modern conveniences. To us they seem a necessity, but to people in other countries they are cherished luxuries. I appreciate the high standard of living that Uncle Sam affords us. If I were to become ill, modern equipment would help me regain my health. Uncle Sam has made it possible for the poor to have this treatment as well as the more wealthy.

Home life plays an important role in the life of Americans. We all have a deep and profound love and respect for our father and mother. Yet in some countries, the home is often divided by the state because the parents are not in sympathy with the views of the state. I am indeed thankful that my father or mother will not be put in a concentration camp because they are not Republicans or Democrats.

By allowing us freedom of the press and speech, Uncle Sam has taught me HOW to think rather than WHAT to think. I am thankful that as yet no one in this country of ours has put himself above God and the home.

May Uncle Sam always be a government of the people, by the people and for the people. Then, as now, will our hearts swell with pride at the sight of our red, white, and blue flag, the emblem of Uncle Sam.

CITY MANAGER AT PORTSMOUTH ENTERS SERVICE

PORTSMOUTH, May 7.—City Manager Ross E. Windom has been named a lieutenant colonel in charge of army camps and cantonments in the Fifth Corps Area.

Nine city managers in all will be charged with maintenance, construction and repair supervision in the various camp areas of the nation.

Windom will ask the Portsmouth city council for a year's leave of absence.

County Probate Courts May Issue Birth Papers

Birth certification forms, which will serve as proof of citizenship for persons whose birth certificates have been lost or destroyed, were approved today by State Health Director R. H. Markwith.

Dr. Markwith said his office has been flooded for months with requests from persons who need birth certificates to secure employment in National Defense industries, but that present state vital statistics records go back only to 1908. Of the more than 1,000 requests received daily, about 300 must be turned down.

The governor last week signed Substitute House Bill 101, which enable county probate courts, in cooperation with the state health department, to issue birth certifications. These can now be obtained from the probate court in the county of the applicant's birth, the county of present residence, or the county in which the mother ordinarily resided at the time of birth.

The statutory fee for the new certifications will be 2 for a correction of an old certificate, or $3 for a new registration. However, the courts are entitled to assess additional court costs if it is deemed that further investigation is needed.

Evidence which may be accepted by the probate judges includes church records, insurance policies, newspaper clippings, dated letters or telegrams, school records, hospital records or other documentary proof.

Dr. Markwith also revealed plans to supply applicants with a pocket-sized certification card if desired for 25 cents additional.

HEAD OF REFORMATORY ON ROTARY'S PROGRAM

Miss Marguerite Reilly, superintendent of the Ohio reformatory for women at Marysville, will speak Thursday noon at the meeting of the Circleville Rotary Club in the American Hotel Hurricane. Miss Reilly will be a guest of Charles Little.

SOURCE OF NEWS STORIES GUARDED UNDER NEW BILL

COLUMBUS, May 7.—Newspapermen in Ohio would be exempted from disclosing the sources of information used in news stories under provisions of a bill passed by the Senate today by a vote of 33 to 0.

Already passed by the House, the bill provides that newspapermen cannot be compelled to reveal their news sources in any legal procedure or trial before any court, grand or petit jury, or before any commission, department, division or bureau of the state, or before any county or municipal body.

TICKETS GO ON SALE FOR PLAY OF HIGH SENIORS

Climaxing their four years of high school activity the senior class of Circleville high will present the play "Death Takes a Holiday" in the school auditorium Wednesday and Thursday, May 14 and 15. The play in its various professional productions has been highly praised by the nation's leading critics.

Samuel R. Johnson, dramatics instructor, states that in view of the fact that most of this year's cast of 15 pupils have had previous play promises to top any produced in the high school in recent years.

All members of the class are selling tickets to defray costs of the production which are high because of the scenery, costumes and the royalty which must be paid before the nights of performances. Reserved seats can be obtained at Hamilton and Ryan Drug Store on and after Friday.

The drug store beetle eats nearly all kinds of drugs. It has been said of it that it will "eat anything" except cast iron.

TWO TAKE ARGUMENT INTO STREET; POLICE NAB THEM

Two men were scheduled for hearing before Mayor William B. Cady Wednesday night following a fist fight on South Court Street Tuesday at 5:45 p. m. They were Mart Chaffin, 27, Ashville Route 4, and Henry Caudill, 25, 331 East High Street.

Arresting officers said the two had argued over a card game and had gone into the street to "fight it out."
